

KISSES AT A PRICE

How the Girls Raised Money for the Church.

DURAND GOSSIPS HORRIFIED

Over an Innocent Placard Offering Kisses for a Quarter—General News of the State.

DURAND, Mich., Jan. 20.—There is a split among the members of the Lutheran church in the town of Durand, near here, over a mode of raising money which was introduced at a social Tuesday night. The affair was given by the young ladies, and it was announced that the girls had a great surprise in store for the good people. The social was given in the church parlors, and they were thronged when the time came. Across one end of the room was a curtain. For an hour the guests waited after the old-fashioned church-social style. Then the curtain was suddenly withdrawn. There in a row stood six of the prettiest girls in the congregation, blushing and giggling, each bearing upon her bosom a placard, on which were the words: "You may kiss me for 25 cents." It was fifteen minutes before the device began to work, but when it did the silver quarters fairly showered into the aprons of the young lady circle. Old men and young eagerly rushed to the front to exchange coin for kisses. The show lasted only a short time when the curtain was again drawn. Then the storm burst. Somebody thought it was not quite proper; somebody else insisted that it was decidedly improper. The critics were largely of the female gender, and did not include any of the pretty girls. The social finally dispersed with several members in a huff, and the tongues of the gossips have been continually busy ever since.

NO MORE USE FOR HER.

A Deserted and Disgraced Husband Discovered.

THREE RIVERS, Jan. 20.—Isiah Cunningham is a well-to-do granger who owns a large and productive farm in North Dakota. He had a young and pretty wife, a bright, two-year-old son and a handsome young farm hand named William Riegel also, but since last October they have not been with him, and there have been no news of them. Cunningham raised 8,000 bushels of splendid wheat last summer, and among others whom he employed to assist in the harvesting and threshing was Riegel, who formerly lived in this county. The farmer's young wife appeared to be much taken up with young Mr. Riegel, and about the first of October she finally played a leading part with him in an elopement drama, taking her two-year-old son with her. The desolate husband and father traced the recalcitrant wife and her paramour to this county. Arriving here Monday he had Riegel arrested and lodged in jail the same night. The officers are now skinning for the faithless wife. Cunningham wishes to send Riegel to state prison and get possession of his child. He says he has no further use for the woman.

Wants to Be Single Again.

FORT GRATIOT, Jan. 20.—About two years ago Mrs. D. Robinson, an English widow residing here, astonished her friends by marrying her adopted son, George Robinson, who was then 45 years old and her husband about 30. The marriage was the reigning sensation here for a long time, and fuel was added to it today when the woman instituted suit for divorce against her young spouse. She charges that he has squandered her fortune by riotous living and is now an habitual drunkard. Robinson has tried his best at about everything in the way of marriage, and in all things has succeeded in dropping large amounts of money. He announces that he will contest the suit.

The charge was preferred by Esther Moor, formerly of the Salvation Army, who is the fifth victim of Cornelius. She charges that two of the wives at present live in Sarnia, two in Fort Huron and one in Brooklyn. Terry pleads not guilty.

Strange Phenomena.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Jan. 20.—Monday night at 8 o'clock the water in Grand Traverse bay fell 1 1/2 feet inside of ten minutes. In about an hour it returned as suddenly. It was discovered by the well at the waterworks and electric light plant going dry and all the lights going out, leaving the city in total darkness for an hour. A strip of beach 100 feet deep was left exposed. Nothing like this was ever known here before, though last November the water fell 2 1/2 feet and rose again in four days.

Died for Want of Food.

ST. LOUIS, Mich., Jan. 20.—Sallie Conklin was found starved to death Tuesday morning in a hotel where she has resided alone for a year past. There was not a scrap of food in the whole house except a half-eaten turkey which lay upon the floor just out of reach of the woman's hands.
